various artists - purple skies remixed

please welcome the new remix-album from nq's purple skies release which features remixes from artists from around the globe. 10 tracks featuring warm and organic textures, shifting and glistening compositions full of atmospheric dissonance and crunchy rhythms made from crisp head-nodding up-tempo beats. the collection showcases electronica-artists from japan, finland, italy and germany.

ametsub (progressive form, drizzelcat | japan) delivers sounds like abstract pastel paintings, one particularly nostalgic track, disconcerting and beautiful. spyritual (kitty-yo | finland) takes some tuneful vocals and forms some jazz-driven bitter-sweet melancholia. aus (moteer | japan) merges an ambient wash of distant drums and piano with melodic threads and hypnotic patterns. e.stonji (kitty-yo, skam, klein records | germany) once again proves to have great production skills when turning the original inside-out, forming an undulating symphony of breaks, drums, loops and noises... classic electronica at its best. deer (neo ouija, hippocamp | germany) adds an uplifting minimal track to the collection. some straight rhythmic pattern spreading out over lulling melodies showing appreciation for simplicity and minimalism. bluermutt (audioactivity, nexsound, tonatom | italy) his remix sticks with the original but unfolds into an easy-minded meditative hymn, with gentle breakbeats and silky textures with a sense of melody and time-shift. nq (kitty-yo, tonatom, progressive form / germany) reinterprets his own tracks, creating a rather dark and dense remix with low frequencies and melodies hemmed between the beats. mormo (low impedance / uk) adds broken glitchy twists and turns to a sea of constant shifts and beautiful mutations of sound and quiet ambient interludes. el fog (moteer / japan) strips everything down to a low swing of repeating minimal clicks and drones... isolated and compressed laptop music. palac (kitty-yo, frozen elephants music, soundlab / germany) opens up to organic bits, field-recordings and hectic, natural sounds merging with torn patterns and rough chords.
